The Intercollegiate Rowing Regatta Muddle.

The board of stewards of the Intercollegiate Rowing Association seems to be in hard luck. Because the West Shore would not run an observation train on July 1 along the Highlands course it transferred the regatta blowing from south-southwest to Lake Cayuga, for June 19. Now comes the word that there will be no the racers got out to the old yellow observation train at Ithaca either. It is obvious that as between the Hudson light vessel and manoeuvred for the and Cayuga, without observation trains at either place, the Hudson is far start. Quite a sallery of yachts and demore preferable. We wonder why the board did not find out first if there asroyers came out for the race, incluwould be an observation train at Ithaca. It is a muddled situation, which ing Commodore J. Pierpont Morgan's may be blamed on the freight tieup and the scarcity of cars. Still, the tieup Corsair, with the owner on board; the is not going to do away with the usual two observation trains at the Harvard-Yale regatta at New London on June 25. We trust that the tieup will not interfere with arrangements for next year's regatta-at Pough-

British Refusal of Kelly's Entry Does No Good.

The entente cordiale between the United States and England will not be helped among followers of sport by the barring of John Kelly, champion sculler of America, from the English Henley. Kelly sent his entry 11:00:18. for the Diamond Sculls-an entry which had the sanction of the National Association of Amateur Carsmen of America. The other day the Henley away towards the Narraganset shore or officials cabled that Kelly's entry could not be accepted. Some years ago the Vespers of Philadelphia—Kelly's club—went to the Henley and had some sort of argument with the British officials. Why this should be dug up at this time to bar Kelly we know not-unless Kelly looks too formidable for the best of the British scullers. Kelly is more than angry and says Vanitie went further to seaward. Who that it will be his great pleasure to beat the winner of the Diamond Sculls they tacked again the Vanitie attempted
